

ABSTRACT

A method and system for load balancing at a domain name server and Internet mail server for mail messages where the system is modified to direct mail via sequentially
5 selected mail servers comprises a networked dynamic domain name server computer communicating with a plurality of email servers (SMTP listeners), POP servers and a plurality of email clients.